[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

EASTERN DATES TO MARCH 9.

The French Assembly.

BORDEAUX, March 8.—In the Assembly to-day Favre proposed the abrogation of all laws restricting the right of the people to hold meetings and form Associations.

Thiers, in reply to a question, said the expenses of the war, outside of Paris, exceeded 1,100,000,000 francs.

A committee of the Assembly made a report in favor of annulling the election of members to the Assembly from Algeria.

Victor Hugo proceeded to make a speech warmly defending Garibaldi, but was interrupted by a great tumult in the chamber.

PARIS, March 8.—The World's special says the Assembly will leave Bordeaux on Saturday and meet at Versailles on Monday.

The disorder and excitement of the last few days continues, but no further outrages have occurred. Detachments from the Chanzy army are arriving.

The Anglo-American Commission.

LONDON, March 8.—It is said by the Times in an article on the Anglo American Commission to-day, that it represents the opinion of the Government, and that instructions in harmony with the views therein expressed on the Alabama claims have been sent to the British members of the Commission at Washington.

Dispatches from Brussels.

BRUSSELS, March 8.—The Belgian Government has appointed three persons to consult with the municipality of Sedan to take measures for disinfection of neighboring battlefields and removing carcasses of horses from the Meuse, to prevent epidemic when the river gets low.

Paris and the district of Montmartre on Tuesday were all quiet. No disturbance is reported to day.

It is stated that the Assembly will commence its session at Versailles on Sunday.

WASHINGTON CITY.

The Senate Committees.

NEW YORK, March 9.—The Tribune's Washington special says there is great excitement in political circles to-night in regard to the action of the committee appointed by the Republican caucus of the Senate to propose a revision of Senate committees. The committee was in session Tuesday forenoon and all day yesterday, but voted to keep secret the result of their deliberations. Rumors are afloat in regard to important changes, but all agree that a change is to be made in the Committee on Foreign Relations. The report is believed that Sumner is to be removed from the head of that committee, and from the committee itself, and that Morton or Cameron will probably be promoted to the Chairmanship. Frelinghuysen is said also to be placed on the committee in order to make it up to its quota. For this proposition the committee stood three to two, the majority being Nye, Howe and Poole, and the minority Thurman and Morrill. A rumor, not generally credited, is that a majority will report in favor of allowing Sumner to retain his present position. The caucus called for ten o'clock to day and the report of the committee will no doubt give rise to a very warm and bitter debate. The friends of Sumner will fight the change with the greatest vigor, and if they fail in caucus will combine their opposition in open Senate. It is said that one of the oldest Senators called on the President and advised him to so increase the number of members on the committee as to place Sumner in a minority, but the President would not consent to anything short of Sumner's removal. The principal argument in favor of the change is the assertion that Sumner is not on speaking terms with the President or Assistant Secretary of State. As to the general framework of other Senate committees but little change will be made.

It is reported that Senator Scott, of Penn., goes on the Finance Committee in place of Cattell; Gen. Ames in place of Warner, and the new Senator from Iowa in place of Williams. The first three members of the committee will be Sherman, Morrill and Fenton. The committee are unable to agree in regard to reconstructing the new Committee on Election and Privileges, and will leave it to the committee to decide.

EASTERN STATES.

Hurricane at St. Louis.

St. Louis, March 8.—A most terrific hurricane passed over a portion of East St. Louis between 2 and 3 o'clock this afternoon. The wind first came from the southeast, accompanied by a brisk shower, but suddenly veered to the south west and came with a fury and force never before witnessed in this latitude. It first struck the elevator on the bank of the river and took a part of the roof off. Passing on in a due northwest direction, it totally demolished a portion of the freight depot of the St. Louis and Vandalia rail road, 800 feet long by 100 feet wide, and a water tank 80 feet high, the freight and passenger depot of the southeastern railroad, two freight depots, a portion of a passenger depot, a ticket office, a large round house of the Chicago and Alton rail road, the car house, scale office, freight office and a part of one of the freight depots of the Ohio and Mississippi railroad; the freight and passenger depots of the Toledo and Wabash railroad and a number of dwelling houses in the vicinity. A portion of the roof of the Terre Haute and Indianapolis depot was blown off and nearly all the derricks and other appliances used in constructing the bridge, were torn from their places and blown into the river. Everything within a width of from two to three hundred yards was actually blown to pieces. A whole train of cars, including a 30 ton locomotive, was blown from the track, and hurled some 40 feet into the slough. Another train of thirteen cars, loaded with grain, was overthrown and smashed, and one car blown into the river. A train coming in on the Terre Haute road, when at Brooklyn, three miles north of East St. Louis, was blown from the track, and some forty cars standing on the side tracks of the Toledo and Wabash, and Chicago and Alton railroads, about nine miles out, were overthrown. The round house of the Chicago and Alton road, after being blown down, caught fire from an engine inside, and its ruins burned. The engineer of the locomotive was burned to death.

The number of killed and wounded cannot be stated to night, but seven are known to be killed, between thirty and forty severely wounded, and about as many more slightly injured. It is believed that there are a number of persons still buried beneath the ruins. The scene is frightful. Houses are torn to fragments, others unroofed or upset, and still others carried bodily from their foundations. Scarcely a building or tree, or anything else within the track of the storm, is standing. The work of ruin is complete.

The pecuniary losses are estimated as follows: Chicago & Alton R. R., $500,000; Ohio & Mississippi R. R., $200,000; Toledo & Wabash R. R., $125,000; St. Louis & Vandalia R. R., $500,000; Southwestern, $50,000; Wiggins Ferry Company, $25,000. Two or three steamboats lying on the eastern side of the river were also seriously injured.

Pennsylvania Legislature.

HARRISBURG, March 8.—The first test vote in the Legislature on the contest between the miners and railroads, was taken yesterday afternoon in the Senate. The question was whether the general laws governing mines and protecting the lives of miners in anthracite regions, should be extended to the western bituminous coal fields. The bill passed to a third reading just as the miners wanted it. All amendments were defeated. The result was heralded as a great victory over transportation companies, and the House will concur. Last evening the managers of coal and railroads appeared before the Judiciary Committee of the Senate and testified concerning the strike. They are to be followed by the President of the Workmen's Benevolent Association and other representatives of laboring men. It is evident that the tide has set strongly against railroads, and there are rumors that high authority is determined to break up the exorbitant rates of freight, even if it becomes necessary to seize and operate their roads. This was done in 1855 in the case of the Lake Shore road, for violation of charter.

Wm. Kendrick, President of the Anthracite Trade, and a large delegation of miners are here. Reports just received show that the troubles are increasing. Large iron furnaces at Danville and vicinity are on the point of striking, and within forty eight hours 5,000 men will be out of employment if the Government takes decided grounds in favor of the workmen.

"MILITARY INTERFERENCE."

REMARKABLE SPEECH BY CONGRESSMAN SARGENT OF CALIFORNIA — DEMOCRATIC PRETENSIONS EXPOSED AND EXPLODED — A DEBATE TURNED SIGNALLY AGAINST THEM.

A debate on the army appropriation bill took place in the House of Representatives on the 19th of February. Democratic members undertook to improve the occasion to denounce "military interference in elections." Messrs. Niblack of Indiana, Brooks of New York, and others, made bitter and violent speeches. But Mr. Sargent, a Republican member for California, turned the debate against them by a speech of remarkable energy and power. Obtaining the floor immediately after Mr. Brooks had sat down, Mr. Sargent said:

The rebuke of the gentleman from New York [Mr. Brooks] to the last Democratic administration and to the present Democratic Governor of my State is certainly very effective. He has put in stronger language than I would attempt the "atrocious and unconstitutional" conduct of employing the military force of the country, in any case, for the purpose of overawing citizens at elections. I have said "the last Democratic administration," because the convention which nominated Seymour for the Democratic candidate for President passed a resolution indorsing Andrew Johnson and his administration. His treason to his own party made him acceptable to the Democracy.

Now, a few days before the last Presidential election, there being no riot in San Francisco, nothing calling for military interference, what was done there? We had a bright and shining light of the Democratic party for our Governor, Henry H. Haight; yet he, in a time of profound peace, perhaps actuated by a fear that the city of San Francisco would not cast its vote for Seymour, or that loyal organizations might put down riotous demonstrations of the Democracy, sent to Andrew Johnson a telegram which, together with the reply, I ask to be read by the Clerk.

The Clerk then read Haight's telegram to Andrew Johnson asking authority to use United States troops at the election in San Francisco, and Johnson's order to the Secretary of War to instruct General Halleck to act in the matter; and then Mr. Sargent proceeded:

Did Andrew Johnson send a refusal couched in such terms as those employed by the gentleman from New York [Mr. Brooks] and his Democratic associates here? Did he insist that it was unconstitutional and atrocious to use military force or display it at an election? Did he call attention to the fact that the city was profoundly quiet? Not at all. As I have shown, he ordered the United States military force to be put at the disposition of the Democratic Governor of California; not, I repeat, in the face of a riot, or any military necessity for it; not when the people were rising up against the State or to overthrow the municipal authorities or to pollute the purity of elections. What was the result? The army and navy were employed in San Francisco; and I have here the official order of General Halleck, showing how the cannon were pointed in our streets and the troops stationed in our public squares, with an offensive display of cavalry and war vessels ready to belch fire on our citizens. I ask the Clerk to read it.

This order was also read by the Clerk, when Mr. Sargent continued:

That was during the last Presidential election. This is a Democratic precedent, all the parties to it being Democrats. And will it be believed that that same Democratic Governor, H. H. Haight, forgetting or ignoring his own conduct on that occasion, and catching the clap-trap talk here about military interference in elections, recently published a letter wherein he announced himself a candidate for re-election, and announced as one of the planks of his platform that he is opposed to military interference in elections?

The gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. Eldridge] has asked me if I am in favor of military interference in elections. I am in favor of it under these circumstances: when, as in the 6th ward of New York city, there were between six and seven thousand votes cast at two successive elections—nearly double the number of votes cast before that time and at the last election—when the whole population in that ward is less than twenty-two thousand; when repeaters go from poll to poll; when the whole system is corrupt and notoriously fraudulent, and the municipal authorities desire it to be so, and when Congress passes a law that in case of the election of members of Congress there shall be appointed inspectors, who shall have the right to see that persons are challenged who ought to be challenged, and that the ballot-box shall be kept pure—in order to carry out a law like that, to defeat frauds like that, I would employ the military force of the country, as I would employ it in all cases where an attempt is made to subvert our institutions; because the safety of our Government depends upon the purity of elections. The gentleman from New York [Mr. Brooks] perhaps describes properly his constituents in that ward when he denounces them as thieves and scoundrels and murder

The Daily Oregonian

FRIDAY MORNING, MARCH 10, 1871.

Something Very Like a Backward Movement.

The Herald thinks we have done Frank Blair great injustice in reporting him as having said in the Senate a few days ago that "he did not regard the Fifteenth Amendment as any part of the law of the land, and he had never held any other doctrine in regard to it." According to the Herald he said just the opposite of this; that is, that he does regard the amendment as part of the law of the land, etc. And that paper is evidently pained to think that such a sentiment as we quoted Blair as uttering, should be attributed to him. At all events we get this idea from its manifest anxiety to show that Blair never spoke in the Senate words of this description, which might damage the Democratic party.

Now we took our report of Blair's speech on the occasion referred to from the columns of the Boston Post, the leading Democratic paper of the East. Blair, it appears, did not wish his speech to go to the country without first pruning it of such sentiments as might bring damage upon his party; hence the Globe of the next day did not contain it, but remarked that it was "withheld for revision." But we have now before us the Globe of a later date, containing the speech, and we find that Blair is there reported as saying that he did regard the amendment as part of the law of the land, but that he did not regard the reconstruction acts in that light. Whether he amended his speech while it was being "withheld for revision" or whether the Boston Post was mistaken in its report of it, we do not understand. But he stands now on the record as saying that he does regard the amendment as valid, but that he does not regard the reconstruction acts as any part of the law of the land, and that if he had been a Senator to act in respect to the reconstruction laws he would have treated them as null, "the consequences be what they might." An expression quite as revolutionary as if he had actually made the declaration against the fifteenth amendment attributed to him.

Here we may remark upon the common action with Democratic Senators and Representatives just now of "withholding their remarks for revision." They want to trim up what they have said to suit the exigencies of the Democratic case, and are afraid to let their political utterances go to the country without first closely scanning them, so as to expunge objectionable matter. This, however, as Blair himself expresses it, is but another way of "apologizing for Democratic doctrines, as if there was something wrong in them.

And now inasmuch as the Herald has taken so much pains to set Blair right in regard to the fifteenth amendment, will it be good enough to set its own position thereanent? Does it regard that amendment as part of the law of the land? We remember that the Democratic Convention of this State last March declared in substance that it was not; we remember that the Democratic Legislature of this State last October made a similar declaration. And the Herald heretofore has frequently declared the same thing. Is it going back on the doctrine now? Is it afraid to make the next political fight on this issue and on the validity of the reconstruction acts? If not why is it so anxious about these utterances of Senator Blair? Why does it so clearly evince its fear that its party may be injured by having it understood that it continues to deny the validity of the fifteenth amendment? There is something very like a backward movement. In the case of many parts of the country it is called "craw-fishing."

A Notice at Last.

There is a little "hand organ" published at Salem called the Willamette, which has long been trying every possible expedient to induce us to notice it. It is a disreputable thing, full of ignorance, conceit, unscrupulousness and falsehood. Even now we do not notice it on its own account, but solely because it is the reputed organ of Gov. Grover, who, report has it, directs its course and dictates its editorials. Among the paragraphs in yesterday's issue of that personal organ of the Governor's was the following:

> The Tax Man compares the relative cost of running the city government for New York City, and believes it was a year when the Pagans controlled that city. Now, if the editor of that paper were ignorant that he does not know that the Pagan party was not in power in New York city, or anywhere, why, he should be booted and sent to the school boys for his ignorance, and if he knows contrary to what he avers, why, he is a liar. He is welcome to either horn here presented.

Now when we show that the unlettered and unscrupulous blackguard whom Gov. Grover uses to forge falsehoods which might even be too gross for himself to utter, has inexcusably misrepresented our statement in order to have a chance to say something in reply to it, his value as "organ grinder" to the Governor may perhaps be better appreciated. Here is the comparison we made:

> The rebels are extremely fond of comparing the taxation now raised by taxation to carry on the National Government with the small amounts raised for the same purpose before the war. Let us give them a lesson in their own arithmetic. In 1860 when the Republicans controlled New York the aggregate taxation in that State alone was $20,402,274. Democrats have now controlled the State for several years and the aggregate taxation in 1870 was $[illegible]. How will that do?

We said not a word about the cost of running the city government for New York City, but referred in direct and specific terms to "taxation in the State for State purposes," and made the comparison between the aggregate taxation in the State in 1860, when the Republicans controlled the State, with the largely increased taxation in 1870, under Democratic rule. This the burly blackguard well knew; but with our paragraph before him he deliberately preferred to fabricate a gross and palpable lie, to telling the truth. The Governor's organ has at last received a notice from us. We trust it is now satisfied. It may as well be, since it will probably never get another.

Senator Sumner saw fit last winter to make a vile and entirely groundless attack on President Grant. The attack was malignant and acrimonious, almost beyond precedent. Sumner dislikes Grant just as he disliked Lincoln, because he cannot control him. The spite of the Massachusetts Senator had been gradually growing for two years, and when the San Domingo question came up he made an occasion to pour it out in all its long-nursed bitterness. The attack, as Senator Conkling well said, was one that an assassin might make. A movement is now on foot among the Republican Senators to remove Sumner from important Committees, and especially from the head of the Committee on Foreign Affairs. He should be removed at once. There is nothing left of the man but egotism, cynicism and a corroding malevolence that displays itself continually. In his causeless attack on the President he has no followers, except among the Democrats who now seem disposed to look on him as a sort of leader for them in the Senate. Nobody in Massachusetts justifies Sumner. The Republican majority in the Senate deliberates about removing him from the leading Committee; but the Republican majority in Massachusetts would now remove him from the Senate, without deliberation, if they could reach him.

A Strong Minded Woman on Her Travels.

MRS. LIVERMORE HEARS HERSELF DISCUSSED THROUGH A THIN PARTITION.

[Extracts from Editorial Correspondence of the Woman's Journal.]

Humboldt was the only town in Kansas where they did not choose a woman suffrage lecture. Here, they preferred some other subject, while in all other towns they would have the "woman question" discussed, and no other, except where I have been a second time to a place. Humboldt is on the Missouri, Kansas and Texas road, and is only fifty miles from the southern boundary of the State, and the Indian Territory. It is a very new town, on the Neosho river, with one thousand inhabitants. It has just commenced the erection of substantial buildings, something better than the temporary cabins that spring up at first. It has a good sized handsome new hall, commodious, and easy to speak in, and a large stone hotel in process of erection. The hotel in which I am accommodated to-night is of the most primitive kind. Not one of its chambers can be warmed, nor can one go down into its little seven-by-nine sitting-room to the fire, for the floor is covered with sleeping men. The partitions of the rooms are of the thinnest board, through which I can even hear the sleeping occupants of the chambers breathe. I had been in my room for two hours, vainly trying, half frozen, to coax sleep to my bed of straw, when four men came to their room, opposite mine, and commenced discussing me and my lecture on "Queen Elizabeth," delivered that evening. The transom windows over the doors were all out—if they had ever been in—and so for an hour I listened to a most entertaining discussion concerning my ability, my personal appearance, my age, with various speculations concerning my skill in domestic affairs, the goodness or badness of my disposition, and other equally important points. Who says that women monopolize the gossip of the community?

Three of them had quite settled it among themselves that I never wrote my lecture—that was impossible! Somebody had told them that my husband was a smart man—a "presiding elder"—and he had written the lecture, which I had "learnt by heart." If was some consolation that they allowed the credit of the lecture to reside in the family. The fourth one, who had also joined in the talk, and who said "he was raised in old Kentuck," now became my champion.

"He'd be darned if he didn't b'lieve that woman was smart 'nuff to write her own lectur. He couldn't read nor write—never could learn it—but he was great on figures, and that's how he'd come to make money. He'd carry the derned'st heap of figures in his head of any feller they ever see. None of these railroad fellers could cheat him—he could tell to cent how many yards of earth he'd got out and how much it come to. But he couldn't read nor write. He'd got a little woman for a wife, though, and, Lord! she could read an' write anything. He'd lick any feller that said his wife couldn't write anything, for he'd just set beside her, and seen her do it. And he'd lick any feller that said she didn't know 'nuff to vote, too. She knew more'n he did, and he could vote, and she couldn't, and it was a derned shame! And when he knew what his little woman could do, you couldnt make him b'lieve that that woman didn't know enough to write her own lecter."

An English Retrospect of the War.

[From the London Times.]

It had become impossible to expect the least check in the progress of the invader's arms. France had ceased to act rationally. She had lost all clue to reason and self-recollection. Her measures, it is hard to say how long, have been those of a man in a dream or a delirium. Orators appealing to frenzied mobs, and substituting for political facts the impressions of an assembly, a market place, and a single hour, have collected crowds of men and boys, called them armies, given them officers like themselves, and then dashed them in the face of a foe who is in fact what they can only pretend to be. On the one side it has been history; on the other side, a theatrical performance redeemed from ridicule only by the sacrifice of the miserable actors. The contrast has been greatest where it was most dangerous. Men who could only talk of war as of a thousand other subjects, waged it against those who lived for it alone, and who were warriors, if nothing else. On the one side were trading politicians, Republican Protects jealous of military command, and soldiers who had served only against half savages; on the other side, men who lived, thought and felt by act and rule of war, deeply imbued with its subtle skill, its hard sway, its cruel logic, and its full liberties, enforcing its rights to the letter. The result has been always and everywhere the same, and it has been hard to say whether the incapacity of the commanders, the inadequacy of the preparations, or the unsoldierlike quality of the men has most contributed to it. The French troops have been always found incapable of holding positions, maintaining advances, supporting one another, or converting into a reality some momentary semblance of success. The enormous disasters with which the campaign opened have been repeated, with variations of circumstances, over a third of France, and now for half a year. Crowds of fighting men have been surrounded and caught like shoals of fish. When the only result of their courage was that they fell in heaps under the fire of batteries they could never reach, and often never saw, they surrendered or fled. Even the purely civil part of the business—the clothing, the arming, the provisioning, the passing and movement of material—has been hopelessly mismanaged between rival authorities, as if not only the instinct of command, but even that of administration, had died out in the decaying people. Thus every day has added to the destruction of life and property, to the exhaustion of French resources and to the alienation of French soil. To German eyes this was a certain calculation; to the Frenchman only a growing loss and debt, which he refused to take count of, as if by blindness he could repudiate it. The certain loss and debt were so much in July, so much in August, and so forth to this month and day. Submission secures, not that the past shall be ignored or forgiven, but that next month, the month after, and month after month indefinitely, shall not add proportionally to the terrible reckoning. No doubt the bill of damages and costs will be unprecedented. France will have to pay for both sides. Territory, money, pride—everything France cares for, will be drawn upon to the uttermost. But it would be worse were she to put off the day. Were half France the penalty, that is not the loss of all.

THE TERRITORIES.

The Puget Sound Woolen Manufacturing Company will put their mill in operation at an early day.

At Olympia an individual who signs himself "640 Acres," addresses a letter to a newspaper on the railroad question, which letter reveals a state of feeling at Olympia very similar to what has been witnessed in Portland: "I will not, you may be assured, give all my property, or any of it, to railroads to benefit my neighbors at my expense. People who indulge in newspaper sneers at a want of public spirit had better lead the way in donations to railroads. Who of the railroad apostles has yet given or agreed to give, in any binding form, a foot of land? Let them show by their deeds, duly acknowledged and recorded, that they will swallow the same medicine they recommend to others. Why not circulate a subscription, with the understanding that it shall not hold good unless all, or nearly all, the landowners give in the same proportion? Then we can have a general donation; and no one, hiding his private greed in public bluster, can hold back with his own land while he persuades others to give theirs."

The annual election in New Hampshire will take place next Tuesday.

Miss Ream's Statue of Lincoln.

[A Woman's Letter from Washington to the N. Y. Independent.]

Miss Ream's statue of Lincoln has been removed from the center of the rotunda, and has taken its permanent place in the Old Hall of Representatives, and there holds crowded receptions day after day. It is curious to stand here, as it is by any new work of art, listening to the impromptu and impartial comments made by careless gazers as they come and go, as well as to the criticisms and compliments of those who consider themselves competent judges of any work whatsoever under the sun. The average verdict is a most favorable one. That the statue is strikingly a likeness of Mr. Lincoln must be acknowledged by the most prejudiced observer. He stands at his full height, the head bending forward, the face looking downward, as if surveying the Emancipation Proclamation held in his right hand. A long circular cloak—a modern cloak—covers the right shoulder and arm, falling off the left, yet caught by the forearm and held by the left hand. This drapery is most happily managed, and gives a breadth and grace to Mr. Lincoln's tall, angular figure which nothing else could give, and which no other statue made of him has given. The head and features are boldly and powerfully executed, the features having a force and depth of expression which I have never seen in any other likeness of him. The peculiar setting of the lips, characteristic of him when in deep thought, with the unfathomable melancholy of the eyes, of which all men know, in this statue are specially noticeable. I recall a moment in his life when his look and attitude were precisely what they are here. It was just after the funeral of General Lander, at the Church of the Epiphany, whose golden cross I this moment see glittering in the sun. It shone dimly that afternoon against the saddest of rainy skies, and looked upon one of the most sorrowful scenes. Almost every day brought a funeral like that—aye, many funerals. Our streets were full of dirges, our houses full of tears. Lander had the faults of an erratic and brilliant genius; but he was a generous man, a heroic soldier—one of the ten thousands dead at their prime. They bore his body out of the church, his sword upon his coffin. The hearse moved away with it through the gay air. The soldier's horse, with empty stirrups and saddle, riderless, moved slowly after it. The great procession took up its line; the band struck up the solemn march in Saul. Mr. Seward and Mr. Lincoln stood in the church door, waiting for their carriage. That very week "Willie" Lincoln, the child most like himself had died. There was the band of crape upon his hat, there was the badge of crape upon his arm. His eyes followed the hearse, moving slowly down the street, and in the look gathered into them life, death, and eternity seem measured. The chief of a great nation—what were office or honor to him, in the face of his own grief, in the face of the people's sorrow? A look which held such depth of sadness I never saw before or since. This was the most powerful impression made by Mr. Lincoln's face on me. He always comes back to me as he looked that moment. I see in this new statue in the rotunda the image of the Mr. Lincoln who stood in the door of the church of the Epiphany. The atmosphere created by it is the same as that which came from the man. It is the most real likeness of Lincoln that I ever saw. It is more himself and less a mere likeness. No one can object to the sadness of the expression. The nation has a right to no other. Whatever it might have been before, from the moment that he became the servant of the people in their time of peril this look gathered and deepened in his eyes, till the hour when he met his own fate in death. I never spoke with Miss Ream, have not the remotest personal acquaintance with her. Thus, the opinion recorded above has been given in utter independence of the personality of the artist. My prejudices were not one of them in favor of this lady. I have an unfeigned horror of all lobbying women. It seems to me that only in a case of life and death could a woman be justified in making herself personally conspicuous in the ante-rooms of the Capitol, or by calling out representatives and senators to besiege them for personal favors. When Miss Ream received her appropriation of ten thousand dollars for a statue of Mr. Lincoln the act was so unprecedented—that a young woman who had not wrought a single statue in marble to show should yet receive a commission from Congress for so important a work—that the universal impression regarding Miss Ream was very unfavorable. I was glad that a woman received that commission; but thought it was Miss Hosmer who had then earned it and think so still. Nevertheless, if Miss Ream received that commission from Congress, as it is now stated that she did, because she sent in the best model of Mr. Lincoln that was presented to it, and not because she waved her ringlets and shed lovely tears before the faces of senators, I am ready to acknowledge my mistake. I am always glad to find myself mistaken when the knowledge is in favor of a woman, young, poor, who has her own way to make in the world. It seems to me that Miss Ream's misfortune has been to offend the taste of that portion of the community who are the real critics of art; and that in return they, in their offense, have in criticising her personally forgotten to do justice to her work and to her remarkable genius for modeling. If you ask me if I think that a refined and sensitive woman would willingly have photographs of herself in theatrical attire, with photographs of private personal gifts bestowed upon her, hawked about the street and in the corridors of the Capitol, I say, most emphatically, No. But then your irritation at Miss Ream's taste has no right to irritate you against her statue. Besides, it is but charitable to remember the curse of the want of money, and that the pressing need of it may have urged Miss Ream to this "trick of trade;" which, certainly, one would think would be a sacrifice of her feelings as a lady. The woman artist has two lives. Her artist life belongs to the world. This fact should make but more sacred her personal life and all that belongs to it. The world never forgets the woman in the artist. It is slower to forgive her errors (even of judgment) as a woman than it is to acknowledge her triumphs as a genius. It seems to be chiefly such errors which have called forth a torrent of angry criticism against Miss Ream, which extends into sheer injustice toward her work. The time has come to make a distinction. Say that she is a little theatrical, and not at all to your taste, personally, if you please; her manners, whatever they may be, give you no just excuse for berating her work. She has brought a grand literal statue of Lincoln—an absolute likeness of the good man whom we love—across the ocean, and placed it in the Old Hall of Representatives—the no blest statue in the Capitol. Let us do it absolute justice for what it is, just as if the girl who made it had neither eyes nor ringlets, and had never used either one for purposes of "art." Bread in an effusive, one-sided criticism on it this morning this one true statement: "A work of art that is worthy of the name should bear no trace of sex. We do not need to ask whether man or woman painted Rosa Bonheur's cattle or wrote George Eliot's novels; they are their own excuse for being." That is precisely Miss Ream's Lincoln's excuse for being. It holds its right in its absolute reflection of the man whom it represents. In beholding it, no impartial judge would receive the slightest hint whether the artist who wrought it wore ringlets or was the proud possessor of a beard. In another criticism I read a sweeping denial of all woman sculptors: "Look at Vinnie Ream's 'Lincoln,'" it says. "It's weak, it's effeminate; it lacks wofully that expression of strength and that comprehensive atmosphere of manliness that a man would have given it!" There is a statue of Lincoln that a man made standing, before the City Hall of Washington; there is another statue of Lincoln that a man made standing by Union Square, New York. Where is "the strength and power, the atmosphere of manliness," that a man should have given them? Alas! not in those ungainly images. The unconvinced verdict of some of the first artists of the world is that the best and truest statue of Lincoln made yet stands in the Capitol of the United States; and that one was made by a woman.

An Olympia paper says that everything at that town is at a stand-still in consequence of the uncertainty of the railroad question. No one dares build; no sales of property take place; every thing and everybody exist in anxious expectation. The same paper calls on the people in that vicinity to offer half their land for the terminus.

PACIFIC COAST DISPATCHES.

[SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

CALIFORNIA.

San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 9.—Michael J. Murphy was tried in the Fourth District Court to-day on an indictment for manslaughter, for shooting Thomas O'Grady in a saloon, and acquitted.

All is quiet on the city front to-night, a strong force of police being on duty to prevent other attempts to mob sailors shipping at reduced wages.

Weather cool and cloudy. No rain.

A meeting of colored citizens last night discussed the question of turning out on St. Patrick's Day, and at length finally adopted, by a small majority, this resolution: Resolved, That we deem it inexpedient and impolitic for our soldier companies to parade on St. Patrick's Day.

The report that the Sonoma R. R. Co. would on resuming work build from the Embarcadero of Donahue, below Petaluma, towards San Rafael, and not northward from Santa Rosa at present, came from Colonel Donahue himself, and is undoubtedly reliable.

The new extensive hotel at the junction of the Stockton & Visalia R. R., south of Stockton, is to be opened April 1st. A large quantity of fine furniture for it has been shipped from this city.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 9.—Arrived—Ship Panama, 135 days from New York; schooner Kamp, from Chaumagin Islands, with the first cargo of codfish of the season of 1871.

Webb advertises his new steamship line this evening. The steamer Nevada will sail April 8th, but does not touch at any port in Australia. The points touched at will be Honolulu, Auckland, Wellington, Lyttleton and Port Chalmers, New Zealand, connecting at Port Chalmers and Auckland with steamers to and from Australia. Freight will only be received for Auckland.

Among the passengers East to-day overland, was Captain Meek, who went as Captain of a whaler in 1832, and has been residing at Honolulu ever since, this being his first visit to his old home.

The party sent down to raise the Western Union Telegraph cable from Lime Point to Fort Point, to-day, only partially succeeded. They succeeded in raising about half of the entire cable.

Resolutions of the colored people against their military companies turning out as an escort on St. Patrick's Day, are not conclusive, as they represent only the church faction. There is a bad split on this as on other subjects, among the colored folks, and men of war may triumph over the men and women of peace yet.

A new side-wheel steamer for the Puget Sound trade, 175 feet in length and 29 feet beam, is being built.

The iron-steamer Prince Alfred is being overhauled and fitted for the Victoria trade.

MARYSVILLE, March 9.—H. H. Bell, of San Francisco, was arrested to day for selling goods without a license. He was acting as drummer for a Merchant street firm of grocers and was fined $30 for a violation of the city and county ordinance, which he paid.

No further developments regarding the Yuba City safe robbery.

INTERIOR CALIFORNIA DISPATCHES.

BATTLE MOUNTAIN, March 9.—An affray occurred this morning which came near having a fatal termination. A waiter named Dudley, and a Chinese cook had some difficulty about a trivial matter, the Chinaman using harsh language; whereupon Dudley struck him with a stick of stove wood. The Chinaman then ran to his room up stairs, and procuring a revolver commenced to shoot down through the floor into the bar-room, where several men were assembled, the bullets coming close to their persons. The Chinaman then came down stairs and commenced shooting at Dudley, who ran into the street, the Chinaman following and shooting until Dudley was out of sight. The Chinaman threatened to kill Dudley if he returned. Hearing this several white men started in search of Dudley, whom they found a short distance from town. They gave him a shotgun and advised him to return and shoot the Chinaman. Meanwhile Constable Rogers had arrested the Chinaman, which thus far settles the matter. Dudley had one finger nearly bitten off in a scuffle with the Chinaman before the shooting commenced.

GILBOY, March 9.—The residence of Charles King was destroyed by fire this morning. Two horses perished.

UTAH.

SALT LAKE, March 9.—Four inmates of the city prison, named McKay, Tobey, Rose and Walker, made their escape last night, by springing the doors of their cells and the main entrance door, when they went up stairs and jumped out of the window. McKay was the leader of the recent southern stage robbery. Their recapture is probable.

From the Olympia Tribune: We learn that Capt. Hayden, of the bark Rainier, will leave San Francisco in a few days for Port Gamble, in command of the powerful steam tug Goliah, recently purchased by the Puget Mill Co. for $40,000. This is the best steam tug on the Pacific coast, and will be a valuable acquisition to Puget Sound. She is a staunch and fast seagoing steamer, and is designed by her new owners to make frequent trips outside of the Straits to aid vessels becalmed or disabled.

TWO LECTURES

ON

Geology of the Great Basin of the Interior of Oregon.

BY

REV. THOMAS CONDON,

AT

PHILHARMONIC HALL,

TUESDAY & WEDNESDAY EVEN'GS, March 14th and 15th,

At 7:30 o'clock.

Tickets, $1 00; single admission, 50 cents.

AT THE REQUEST OF SEVERAL GENTLEMEN prominently connected with the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, together with many citizens of Portland, the Rev. Thomas Condon has consented to give TWO LECTURES as above indicated.

Mr. Condon has devoted much of his time and talent in reading up the buried history of Eastern Oregon. So far as the interesting science of Geology (of which he is an enthusiastic student) could aid him, he has done more for Oregon, Geologically, than all others, and to show appreciation for past services as well as to aid him in prosecuting further search, the net proceeds of these Lectures will be for Mr. C.'s sole benefit. Therefore show your appreciation of honest worth and fill the house to overflowing.

Tickets can be had at the bookstores of S. J. McCormick and Harris & Holman; and at the office of Oregon Steam Navigation Co.

FRIDAY MORNING, MARCH 10, 1871.

CITY.

THE AT LAST SEES ALL THINGS EVEN.—The ... of military heroes grows apace. His Excellency the Governor and Commander in Chief, ... put a new batch of them almost as often as ... full fledged, with rank and honor ... glory all attached, and never a cent to pay. ... dispensation of batons and epaulettes and ... right to buckle on "knobs" with "cheese ... dangling, on all parade and gala days, ... most gracious and discriminating Excellency ... wonderfully kind to our Metropolitan ...

It was not long since that, as a faithful ... of events that must some day be his- ... we had occasion to mention approvingly ... Governor's recognition of the military quali- ... one of our fellow citizens, by the bestowal ... that fellow citizen of all the honors and ... dignities of a Lt. Colonelcy in the O. V. Mili- ... That fellow citizen is no longer "alone in his ... nor is he "a bright particular star"—he ... a fellow. There is another Lt.-Colonel among ... beside the gate of that public curious eye ... to look over delight to rest upon greatness. ... every, the Governor and Commander- ... the O. V. M., hath graciously reposed ... confidence in the integrity, patriotism ... public virtues of our esteemed fellow ... Charles Byron Bollinger, and hath named ... commissioned him to be an Assistant Adju- ... General, with the rank of Lt.-Colonel. This ... no longer tell than t'other one—blether ... by an Aid de Camp, a mere orna- ... ment in His Excellency's military cha- ... is the business of the latter officer ... of his title and rank, to be both orna- ... and useful. One William Shakspeare, an ... gentleman who had a way of saying a ... thing occasionally, once said, "Some are ... great, some achieve greatness, and some ... greatness thrust upon them." We have ... how our senior Lt. Colonel achieved ... the acquaintances of the junior but ... important officer, are divided in opinion as ... whether he achieved his greatness or had it ... upon him. That it was unexpectedly put ... him, we have no doubt; that the Major ... of all the O. V. We may ... suppose that our respected friend Charles ... when he dubbed Gov. Gibbs' belt, a ... "crupper," his sword, a "cheese-knife" and talked ... a army of a "crupper," little thought he ... ever be called upon to adorn himself with ... appendages and to march forth with ... to "order arms." Time brings its ... revenges, however, and now when our ... Lt. Colonel says, derisively, to the Major ... "Crupper, sir!" the Major General can echo, ... "Knife!" There will be no thrusting of "cheese ... now that all will be mutual.

PASSENGERS FOR CALIFORNIA.—The following named passengers sailed last evening per steamer Idaho, for San Francisco: Nat. Cummings, S ... shop, Geo L Story, F W Pierce, H Solomon, ... Grant, J M Beach, W ... Davis, Wm Mc ... Wm H Coburn, John Briggs, Miss F ... Bryant, B ... Frank Wilkinson, A B ... Arthur and wife, J Cramer, W L Perkins, C J ... Provost, F C Harper, Mrs S T Church, L Acker- ... man, H Anderson, G Harman, W F Crosby, W ... H Wilcox, J Robinson, B Jacobson, E Gray, Jeff ... Gha, L Gaellner, Mrs J M Strowbridge and two ... children, Lewis Lewis, C H Allen, Mrs Gribb, S ... Vell, H Hollbridge, L Aakeny, H Levy, D K ... Jos Fan... H K Mouat, Jr, P Van ... Pelt, C H Meussdorffer Col West, (W F & ... Co's Express,) and 7 in the steerage.

FIRE.—The German Patriotic Aid So... of this city held a meeting on Wednesday evening and adjourned without day. This ... was organized a few months ago, ... on the plan of the Sanitary ... among us during our late civil war. ... at without day is equivalent to a ... of the society. The money on hand, ... will be sent forward immediately, ... the war having ended, no further contribu- ... will be taken.

RECORDS OF DEEDS.—Some idea of the vast ... of deeds recorded in the County Clerk's ... may be obtained from the fact that books ... lettered from A to M, inclusive, have been filled ... the organization of the county. The last ... (M) was completed yesterday. It contains ... pages and 4,000 written folios. The books ... about an average of all, and the total number of ... will be, therefore, about 16,374, ... the folios about 32,000.

STEAMER FOR THE NORTH.—The steamer Geo. ... Wright did not sail last evening for Sitka as ... been announced the California having been ... substituted for the voyage. The latter vessel ... command of Capt. Hays, will sail for Sitka, ... Northern ports, at 4 o'clock this after- ... noon. One of the Wright's officers will ... with her. She will have quite a number of ... passengers, among whom are a detachment of ... soldiers for one of the northern posts.

INSANITY.—The billiardists of East Portland, ... with a noble emulation of the skill and ... of the sons of her elder sister, Portland, ... have hatched the scheme of a billiard tournament ... the ... ers of that burg. A mer- ... chant ... of the value of $60, is talked of as ... the prize to be contended for, and the time of ... playing, ... two weeks hence.

SHERIFFDOM.—We have been informed that, in ... the course of some inquiry by the Chief of ... Police, other witnesses by whose testimony the ... ordinance against houses of prostitution could be ... enforced, a number of persons have been invisi- ... ted on last day or two; and it is further reported ... that two or three individuals suddenly remember- ... ed that they had urgent business up country.

THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.—The examinations of ... pupils in the Central school, under Mr. R. K. ... Harvey, Principal, commenced yesterday morn- ... ing and will be continued till 2 o'clock this after- ... noon. The closing exercises will take place this ... afternoon from 2 till 4 o'clock. Parents, as ... usually, and all friends of education, are respect- ... fully requested to attend.

A FEW THIEVES STILL LEFT.—Wednesday even- ... ing between dark and closing time, a thief ... walked into the store of Mr. A. Meier, and when ... he walked out again a couple of pairs of blankets ... and a bolt of gingham stuck to his clothes. It ... seems that of the large and assorted stock of ... goods on hand during the winter there are still a ... few left.

EXPORTS TO SAN FRANCISCO.—The steamer ... Idaho which sailed yesterday, took away near ... ly tons of Oregon products, as follows: 3,700 ... sks apples, 1,500 sks wheat, 20 bf bbls lard, 30 ... bbls pork, 30 cases bacon, 50 bxs eggs, 30 pkgs ... mdse, 7 bales woolen manufactures, and 6,526 ... sacks flour in sks.

MUSICAL REHEARSALS.—The first oratorio re- ... hearsal at McGibeny's Academy of Music will ... take place Saturday evening, and thereafter on ... Monday and Saturday evenings of each week. ... A considerable number of prominent musicians ... of the city, it is said, will take part in these re- ... hearsals.

DUTIES ON CARGO OF IMPORTS.—The duties on ... the cargo of the barkentine Jane A. Falkinburg, ... from Honolulu to this port, a few days since, as ... collected at the custom house, amounted to ... $3,373 95.

DEATH OF AN OLD RESIDENT.—Mr. John Phil- ... lips, proprietor of the Liberty Brewery, died at ... his late residence last night. He was a member of ... the fire company.

TO FIRE THEATER.—The "Swiss Swains" and ... the "The Eaton Boy" furnished most excellent ... entertainment at Oro Fino last night. To-night ... there will be two comedies equally as laughable.

"ACHILLES DE HARLEY" ON REV. MR. ROBERTS.

EDITOR OREGONIAN.

Evangelical ministers as a fraternity are above any need of defenders from such specific attacks as that which appeared in to-day's DAILY OREGONIAN over the cowardly signature used by its vainglorious writer. They always have been, and now are, the pioneers, supporters and promoters of true knowledge. While "holding fast the form of sound words" their speeches are models of freshness in style and matter above those of any other class. No more does their honored brother, the Rev. Wm. Roberts, of the Taylor Street M. E. Church, and his ever successful efforts need any vindication.

But if one hearer may ventilate in the daily papers his unfriendly impressions of Sabbath evening sermons, possibly I may, through the same medium, confess my very favorable impressions of the same. I did not have opportunity to hear only the latter one of the discourses which so grieved our geological "Achilles," but that sermon, delivered so well after the fire alarm had disconcerted all, together with the able writings of Mr. Roberts on the same and kindred subjects, which I have read with pleasure, re-assured me as it did scores of others of his regularly large congregation, not only that he is a master of those subjects but is ably preaching the truth on the "Agreement of Nature, Science and Revelation." It were indeed enough did he present nothing "save what is taught in the ordinary school books." Well were it if all pretenders understood as much. What could be more pertinent and convincing than the grand argument of last Sabbath evening? I and many others had no difficulty nor want of pleasure in understanding it, namely, that the Omnipotence and other attributes of God, revealed alike in the truths of astronomy and geology and in the Bible, evince complete "agreement" between them and the ancient accurate allusions of the latter to the facts of the former, attest the Divine inspiration of those allusions, thus excluding the possibility of disagreement. That one of so large an audience, from personal, dyspeptic, or other cause, should go away as unblessed as "Achilles" says he did is not wonderful. He will allow me to assure him that the Rev. Mr. Roberts possesses the kind of knowledge commended by Bishop Maut in the following extract, the spirit of which would help "A. D. H." amazingly, when he hears another sermon:

"What is true knowledge? Is it with keen eye
Of lucre's sons to thread the many way?
Is it of civic rights and royal sway,
And wealth political, the depths to try?
Is it to delve the earth, or soar the sky;
To mix, and analyze, and mete and weigh
Her elements and all her powers decery?
These things, who will may know them, if to know
Breed not vain glory, but o'er all to scan
God, in his works and word shown forth below—
Creation's wonders, and Redemption's plan,
Whence came we, what to do, and whither go—
This is true knowledge, and the whole of man."

WM. H. ROGERS.

Poisonous Medicines.

The theory that the virus of disease can be safely counteracted by doses of poison, is false and dangerous. Within the last twenty-five years, not less than a score of virulent poisons have been added to the repository of the medical profession. They are given in small doses, otherwise they would destroy life immediately; but even in minute quantities, they produce, ultimately, very disastrous effects. It is unwise and unphilosophical to employ, as remedies, powerful and insidious drugs, which, in subjugating one disease, sow the seeds of another still more unmanageable. None of these terrible medicaments operates with as much directness and certainty upon the causes of disease as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a tonic and corrective, without a single deleterious ingredient in its compound. Arsenic and quinia are given for intermittents; bromide potassium for nervous disorders; strychnine and prussic acid for general debility, mercury in various forms, for liver-complaint; preparations of chloroform and opium for sleeplessness, and yet these deadly drugs do not compare, as specifics for the diseases above enumerated, with that wholesome vegetable invigorant and alterative, while they are all so pernicious that it is astonishing any physician should take the responsibility of prescribing them. Let invalids, for their own sakes, try the Bitters before they resort to the poisons. The relief they will experience from a course of the harmless specific, will render a recourse to the unsafe preparations referred to, quite unnecessary.

A HOUSEHOLD BLESSING.

One that no family should be without. Very warming, very penetrating, very strengthening, very effective. A never failing remedy for Rheumatism, Gout, Neuralgia, Paralysis, Pleurisy, Sore Throat; Colic, Cramps, Cholera Morbus, Swellings, Stiff Joints, Sprains, Bruises, Headache, Toothache, Earache, Pain in the Breast, Lame Back and all Lameness and Pain. Such is PRATT'S ABOLITION OIL. Price, large, $1 00; small, 50 cents. For sale by all druggists. Ask for PRATT'S ABOLITION OIL, and take no substitute.

PRATT'S NEW LIFE

The famous Vegetable Blood Purifier and Liver Invigorator, thoroughly purifies the Blood, speedily cures Scrofula, Skin Diseases, Humors, old sores and ulcers and eradicates from the system all humors and disorders arising from impure blood. Lost on the Plains.

WONDERFUL PERSEVERANCE AND ESCAPE OF A BOY.

[From the Leavenworth Commercial.]

In January last John Wilson, a lad about 16 years of age left his home on Mosquito Bottom, in company with his father and two neighbors, for the purpose of hunting buffalo on the Upper Arkansas. The weather was all that could be wished, game was found in abundance, and the hunters secured as much as their teams were able to haul back so long a distance, and on the morning of the 10th preparations were made for a return home.

Not so, however, with young Wilson, who had become enamored with the wild scenes and wilder sports. To him it was a new life, of which he had often read, but had now become a living actor in its fascinations. To the left of the river, and beyond the skirt of the timber in which the hunters were encamped, stretched the unbroken plain, on which, within range of vision, quietly grazed a small herd of buffalo, and here and there scattered groups of antelope. At sight of these our young hunter became excited, and "only one more shot" before departing, was insisted on. Shouldering a gun hastily, he started out, and was soon lost to sight as he picked his way quietly along the river bank and timber.

Nothing further was thought of the young man's whim by the father and his companions, who were cooking rations for the return trip, and peacefully smoking their pipes.

Young Wilson found the distance to the game much further than he anticipated, but on getting within long range shot, his presence was discovered, and a general stampede was the result. Nothing daunted, he continued the chase, fully determined on the last shot and a dead buffalo. Onward he went, over the plain, through the wood and thicket, regardless of all impediments, but four legs could wander further than two, and he was left far in the rear. Time had elapsed, unheeded by him; night was upon him, and, for the first time, he realized that he was alone upon the vast plain, his game beyond his reach, and companions he knew not whither. His reckoning was lost, and he stood bewildered. To add to his misery, one of those fierce winds, so common in that section, came up, and with it a driving, blinding sleet, which transformed him into a walking-icicle.

Cold and benumbed, he started, as he supposed, for the wood along the ravine, but instead, traveled from it—now hastening, now slackening his pace as the cold affected him. At length he came upon a small clump of bushes, under which he took shelter, sat down and was soon asleep and lost to his lonely position.

The boy not returning in a reasonable time to camp, his father and companions became uneasy, and set out in search of him. Guns were fired, Indian whoops and yells in response to the full extent of their lungs, but answer came in response. The same was continued throughout the night, and large fires were kindled on the highest eminences to hopes of attracting his attention, but all in vain. Morning came, yet with it no boy. He had passed in fruitless search, followed by another night of demonstrations similar to those of the first. Thus passed two nights and one day, and with them the hopes of friends. The anguish of the parent in his extremity was almost unbearable. To return without his son, he could not, for there was an anxious mother fondly awaiting their return from the hunt.

On the third day, after fully deliberating the party concluded to return home, form companies of their neighbors and make a grand search for the boy on the plains.

* * * * * * *

Awakening from his sleep through feeling of coldness, young Wilson looked out upon the dreary waste before him. The wind still howled but the sleet subsided. His frozen clothes clung about his body as he arose and picked up the gun. He now fully comprehended his situation, and his first thoughts were of his friends and something to eat. To choose his course puzzled him, yet no time was to be lost. He plucked from one of the bushes a sprig, cut it on end, and in his boyish way resolved to hang in the direction it might fall. As the result will show, it fell in the opposite direction to that in which his friends were, and he wandered further and further away.

Soon procuring food his gun was now his only reliance and he trudged along a sharp lookout was kept up for game. The first day was nothing in the game line presented itself, but in the second a small herd of buffalo, in which he fired passed him. The shot was short of the mark and they were soon away. He passed the third and fourth days. Weakened by hunger and fatigue, he nevertheless kept up good courage, and hoped that if he did not find friends he at least might fall in with the hunters or Indians, friendly or otherwise he did not care much which, so long as his scalp was safe and a prospect of replenishment of his vacant stomach offered.

On the morning of the fifth day he came to a small stream, skirted by a few scattered trees. Here he gathered up some broken limbs, and picked out from beneath the roots dry grass enough to start a fire. This he did by means of his gun and blowing the wad from which soon grew into a warming blaze. Here his frozen clothes were thawed out and himself warmed. By this time he was too hungry and worn out to proceed much further, and he resolved on keeping up his fire through the night. While so engaged late in the evening he was suddenly startled by a gruff voice, and a big dirty Indian stood before him with a gun on his back and the hind-quarters of an antelope.

Nothing replied Wilson, as he sprang to his rifle. "How yourself?" said he with astonishment at the intruder. The Indian comprehended the situation, proffered him his meat, and they sat down together and ate ravenously of it. The meat and food livened him up, and he soon learned that a band of friendly Indians had encamped a few miles below. To this place he two repaired, and Wilson was welcomed kindly and fed for three days, when an ambulance was given to him to reach Fort Dodge. His course was pointed out, and he started on his homeward journied. He traveled three days when he fell in with his father and friends, who were returning to renew the search for him. The meeting was a joyous one, and young Wilson entered with "only one more shot."—Leavenworth Commercial.

German Counsels for Moderation.

The Cologne Gazette in a recent article, remarking on the terms of peace between Germany and France, said: "Every thinking, and intelligent man who can raise himself above the excitement of the moment must cherish the wish that the conditions of peace should not be excessively hard for France, but such that a durable peace between two great civilized nations may be at least possible and conceivable. We have a remarkable precedent. From 1792 to 1815, nearly twenty-three years, without interruption, the French and the English fought by land and sea with the greatest exasperation, and they had for centuries to regard themselves as hereditary enemies. England was deemed the Power which gained the last great victory of Waterloo, after having been always victorious at sea. Revenge for Waterloo was regarded for years and tens of years as the innermost idea of French policy, and yet the old national hatred has by degress almost disappeared. This may possibly, at any rate, be the case between Germans and French, if on both sides moderation guins the victory. * * * To this end that wise moderation is necessary of which the venerable King John of Saxony speaks so beautifully in his letter to the Emperor at Versailles, for, in spite of immense and wonderful success, we will not at this critical moment be drawn into a belief that the power of resistance of France is already utterly destroyed. Despair doubles strength, and we not wish to drive the French to desperation. Let us think of Spain. How inferior in every respect was the Spain of 1808 to the France of to-day; and yet it offered in 1808–13 to Napoleon, at the height of his power, and to his most famous Marshals a permanent resistance. The Emperor Williams's head is encircled with laurels; let him now remember that the first and greatest of all the Cæsars is not more famous and honored on account of all his victories than on account of his conciliation and lenity." The article advocates as the basis of peace the restoration of all the really German territory which the French have in the course of time taken from Germany.

FINANCE AND COMMERCE.

PORTLAND, Thursday, March 9, 1871.

Gold at New York, 111½.

Currency quotations at this city, 89½c buying and 91c selling.

Exchange on San Francisco—coin, ½ of 1 per cent., currency, ½ per cent.

Exchange on New York, 1½ per cent., telegraph transfers, 1¾ per cent.

U. S. 5 20 bonds quotable at 105½@106 for 1862 and 1867.

Rates of interest unchanged, at 10@12½ per cent.

Oregon Bounty and Relief bonds, 80@87½; State warrants, 97c@par.

We have no new feature to note in local finances. Money is a trifle scarce, though not enough to occasion any serious inconvenience.

The stormy weather of the past week has greatly retarded the opening of the spring trade, in all branches. About the only notable movements in goods are certain implements for the farming districts, a moderate business in hardware and about the usual trade in groceries. It is yet too soon for the opening of the spring business in dry goods. With the exception of a few articles of groceries, we have not a quotation to change from last week.

Wheat is in somewhat better demand, for shipping, but the quotations are not advanced. Bacon is also in better request, at the figures quoted. In general, however, the produce market is dull. Butter is scarce, and consumers in this city are mostly dependent upon California for table qualities. A few who made arrangements last fall with dairymen, are still receiving their supplies direct from the dairy. They are the only consumers who get a decent article of Oregon make, just now. Beyond these particulars, there is nothing requiring comment in the produce market.

The latest quotations from New York are as follows: Wheat, $1 70@1 75. Barley, 90c; Pork, $22 ₱ bbl. Lard, 13½@16c. Hides—market very dull; dry, 21c, gold; salted, 11@12c. Oils—Sperm quiet at $1 38@$1 40; winter bleached, $1 45@1 50; whale, quiet and weak at 63@65; winter bleached, 70@73c. Wool—Market steady; spring, fine, 22@30c; burry, 21c; pulled, 23@35c; fall, California, 19@24c; burry, 13½@16c.

At Liverpool, wheat 11s 10d@11s 2d per cental.
